soothing TREATMENTS

Rooibos is part of the legume family and grows as shrubs between 1 and 2 metres high. During October, the plant is covered with small, yellow flowers. Each flower produces only one small pod containing a single, very small, light yellow, hard-shelled seed. Cultivation of the plant was initially difficult because when the seed pods mature, they rupture and shoot out the seeds.

That made it nearly impossible to find and pick up large enough quantities of the seeds to farm the plants. Farmers eventually discovered certain kinds of ants harvest and store the Rooibos seeds in their nests. The farmers collected seeds from the ant nests and planted them successfully. Today, Rooibos seeds are collected by a special sifting process that lifts the seeds from the sandy soil around the plants.

Annique's theme for February is Rooibos Relationships. As is seen from above, the Rooibos process requires a relationship between man and nature to be processed successfully. In the same way, you can use Rooibos to grow your own relationships.

"Headache medication has been part of my lifestyle almost all my life. It could always keep my headaches under control. Due to my hormonal imbalances, there was no medication that could bring relief to my migraines. I would be as sick as a dog with headaches twice a month. I started drinking the CBD Isolate and to my surprise my migraines disappeared within a month. At first I thought it was a coincidence, but after two months I realised that I had found the solution to my migraines."
